

The SkyHopper Satellite project

SkyHopper is a planned Australian low-cost satellite mission with substantial contributions from Germany. SkyHopper's original science driver were Gamma-Ray Bursts. Meanwhile the mission concept has been substantially broadened to include other research fields. In this talk I will highlight the scientific motivations for SkyHopper and the contributions from Germany.